

Anne Sebba is a biographer, lecturer, journalist and former Reuters correspondent. She read History at King's College, London, and her first job was at the BBC World Services in the Arabic Department. Anne has written 9 critically acclaimed books, mainly about women who enjoyed using power and influence in different ways. In 2011 she published 'That Woman: the Life of Wallis Simpson, Duchess of Windsor', which became an international bestseller, and her next book, 'Les Parisiennes', about women in Paris between 1945 and 1949, is due to be published in 2016. Anne has also written several short stories and introductions to reprinted novels. In addition to making regular television appearances and presenting radio documentaries, Anne is a NADFAS lecturer and gives talks on cruises, to corporations, clubs and institutions. She is a former Chair of Britain's 9,000 strong Society of Authors and President of ArtsRichmond.