

Linda Smith holds a first class BA and MA in Art History and has a particular interest in British Art since 1550 and in modern art. An experienced guide and lecturer, she has given illustrated talks, presentations and study days at a wide range of venues, including schools, universities, cruise ships and private arts societies. In addition to being an accredited NADFAS lecturer, she is a gallery guide and lecturer for Tate Britain and Tate Modern and has also worked at Dulwich Picture Gallery and other public galleries.