

Maggie is President of the Gemmological Association of Great Britain and an Associate of the British Institute of Professional Photography. Her work includes identification of organic gem materials, that is, those of plant or animal origin, teaching, writing and research. She regards ivory as one of her main areas of expertise. Maggie gives lectures and seminars worldwide for specialist groups, such as gemmologists, auctioneers, museum curators, conservators and, of course, NADFAS. She is the author of 'Gem and Ornamental Materials of Organic Origin' and 'Ivory' and she is publisher of the online information archive, 'Organic Gems'. She has appeared on television and her photographs and articles have been published in many specialist books and magazines. She has also worked in various places as a research assistant in animal conservation, studying animals which include elephants and turtles.
